Cocaine, knife found in teachers' car

Two city public school teachers were arrested Friday and police say they found cocaine and a dagger in the vehicle they were driving. Diana Mancusco, 29, and Karen Aguilar, 26, were arrested in the Bronx after police deemed them intoxicated. While searching, officers said they found a small amount of cocaine as well as a dagger inside their car. ● METRO/CB

Found dead

The body of a young woman who had been a student at Elmira College in upstate New York was found Saturday in Arizona, police say, inside a car that officials suspect drove through a guard rail off a cliff. Jessica Ronhock, 21, was discovered inside a white Jeep Cherokee that police found about 200 yards below the cliff. ● METRO/CB

Teen charged with destroying playground

FAR ROCKAWAY. A Bronx teen was charged with wreaking havoc on an under-construction playground in Far Rockaway, Queens DA Richard Brown announced Friday. Allan Swafford, 17, is accused of driving a bulldozer through a playground, tearing through decorative pilings. Swafford allegedly ripped three plastic slides to shreds, and severely damaged roofing, stairs, posts, railings and even destroyed a suspended walking bridge. ● METRO/CB

Second-hottest March on record in NYC

NEW YORK. Central Park had its second-hottest March on record, as thousands of new weather records were set or tied across the U.S., according to the National Weather Service. In New York, the average temperature was 50.9 degrees, which was 8.9 degrees above normal, while below the record 51.1 degrees in 1945, according to the weather service. Across the U.S., 7,577 all-time daily high temperatures were set or matched in March. The warm weather contributed to a decline in natural gas prices, as less energy was needed to heat homes. ● BLOOMBERG

JetBlue pilot's family says he meant no harm

► Family of pilot who was subdued by passengers on flight asks for privacy ► Capt. Clayton Osbon still undergoing medical treatment in Texas ► After being charged, faces possible $250,000 fine and time in jail

The wife of JetBlue Airways Capt. Clayton Osbon, who was subdued by passengers while his plane was in flight last week, said the family is declining interviews, and they don't believe he intended to hurt anyone.

Connie Osbon asked the media to respect its privacy and said the family won't be granting any interviews or making any further public comments, according to the statement released yesterday by JetBlue on the family's behalf.

"We would like to recognize the crew and passengers of Flight 191 for their effective yet compassionate handling of the situation," the family's statement said. "It is our belief, as Clayton's family, that while he was clearly distressed, he was not intentionally violent toward anyone. We know you were placed in an awful situation and we appreciate your ability to respond professionally."

$250K

Osbon may also be hit with a $250,000 fine after he was charged with interfering with flight crew, say officials.

The captain began acting erratically during a flight that departed from JFK Airport on March 27. Osbon was locked out of the cockpit by his co-pilot as the plane, JetBlue Flight 191, was diverted to Texas.

Osbon, 49, was tackled and sat upon by passengers when he tried to re-enter the cockpit after briefly stepping out, the company and federal officials said. An off-duty pilot, who had entered the cockpit while Osbon was gone, helped land the Las Vegas-bound flight in Amarillo, Texas.

Right now, Osbon is being evaluated and treated at Northwest Texas Healthcare System hospital in Amarillo. He faces as many as 20 years in prison after being charged with interfering with the plane's flight crew, U.S. Attorney Sarah R. Saldana said in a statement last week.

● BLOOMBERG

'Leap of Faith' sought

Osbon turned off the plane's radios, dimmed his monitors and told the first officer on board that "we need to take a leap of faith," according to court documents. After the plane left JFK, Osbon "started trying to correlate completely unrelated numbers like different radio frequencies, and he talked about sins in Las Vegas," according to court filings. "At some point, Osbon told the first officer, 'We're not going to Vegas.'" According to reports, Osbon's father died in a plane crash in 1995. Ronald Osbon died while piloting a small personal plane en route to Daytona Beach, Fla. Osbon reported losing power on both engines just before the crash.

OWS marches from Zuccotti to Brooklyn

Several hundred members of Occupy Wall Street walked across the Brooklyn Bridge yesterday afternoon. The march, which started from Zuccotti Park and culminated in Cadman Plaza, was to commemorate the six-month anniversary of Occupy Wall Street's Oct. 1 march across the iconic bridge. On that day, more than 700 OWS protesters were arrested after they shut down the car lanes of the bridge. Yesterday's rally was comparatively peaceful. ● METRO/CB

GS to exit firm owning site for sex trafficking

NEW YORK. A private equity fund run by Goldman Sachs has agreed to sell its stake in the media company that runs a sex-trafficking forum back to company's management, a company spokeswoman said yesterday.

GS Capital Partners III on Friday signed a deal to sell its 16 percent stake in Village Voice Media, which owns the website Backpage.com. The fund began negotiations with Village Voice Media in March, after deciding in 2010 that it had grown "uncomfortable with the direction of the company," and Goldman's inability to influence its operations, said Andrea Raphael, a Goldman Sachs spokeswoman.

Raphael said the fund invested $30 million in Village Voice Media in 2000. She declined to disclose the sales price, but did say that the fund lost a "vast majority" of its investment. ● REUTERS

Cracking down on text message 'cramming'

Those unwanted "joke of the day" or celebrity gossip text messages are certainly annoying. But what New Yorkers may not know is that they can be costly, too.

The practice is known as "cramming," and it's when third parties inundate thousands of cell phone numbers with silly information sent via text. Except some people are later billed for those text messages, in charges that show up labeled as "service fee," "other fees," "voicemail," "calling plan" or other vague terms.

"No one should be able to put a charge on your cell phone bill unless you have given explicit consent," said U.S. Senator Charles Schumer, who is calling on wireless carriers to fix the increasingly common problem. "Cell phone bills nowadays can be dozens of pages long — and if you don't pay close attention, buried in your bill somewhere could be a $10 charge you never authorized or mistakenly agreed to by replying to an unsolicited text."

But you can still be charged

EMILY ANNE EPSTEIN/METRO

"It's becoming more and more common that the charges appear first, and then consumers have to dispute them later."

U.S. SENATOR CHARLES SCHUMER

even if you ignore such a text message.

One New York City man recently received text messages with random information, such as, "Flamingos are pink because they eat shrimp." He then got a follow-up text that stated he could end the bothersome messages by texting "STOP."

The man didn't reply out of fear he would only get more spam. But nonetheless he later got a suspicious charge on his monthly bill for $9.99 for "ringtone."

Schumer is calling on carriers like Verizon and AT&T to voluntarily prohibit third-party billing if customers do not explicitly say they want such services.

It's an onerous process to dispute the charges, and it's one cell phone users shouldn't have to go through, said Schumer.

Specifically, Schumer said he wants the Federal Communications Commission to require wireless carriers get affirmative consent from consumers for any third-party charge — before it winds up at the bottom of a bill.

Toxic tofu suspected in botulism outbreak

NYC DEPT. OF HEALTH

One person remains hospitalized after a rare outbreak of botulism in New York City, according to the health department, which is investigating a possible tofu link to the illness.

Two people contracted the serious disease after buying tofu from the same store in Flushing, according to health officials. One of the two who became ill was released from the hospital during the weekend, but the other person remains under medical care, a city Department of Health spokeswoman told Metro.

Both patients are Chinese-speaking Queens residents and had recently purchased fresh bulk tofu, which sat out at room temperature at the store. That kind of tofu is commonly sold in an open, water-filled bin, and is often made into a popular Chinese dish known as fermented or "stinky" tofu.

Officials say the tofu sold was not made at the store, and they are currently trying to determine where it was made and how it was distributed.

Caused by an extremely potent toxin, botulism is a very rare but serious foodborne illness.

► Fresh tofu should never sit out at room temperature, say health experts.

The last time a case was reported in New York City was 15 years ago, say health officials.

The toxin affects the body's nervous system, and symptoms include blurred or double vision, weakness or paralysis, poor reflexes, difficulty swallowing and speaking, and difficulty breathing.

Symptoms of foodborne botulism usually occur 12 to 36 hours after ingestion, but may take several days. If left untreated, botulism can be fatal.

As the investigation continues, health experts are warning New Yorkers not to buy and to throw away all fresh bulk tofu that has been kept at room temperature. Even cooking this type of tofu is not a definite safeguard against botulism, as the organism's spores can still remain in the food. Once brought home, fresh tofu should always be kept refrigerated, health experts said. Prepackaged tofu products which are refrigerated are still safe.

What's better than an Easter egg scavenger hunt? An Easter egg scavenger hunt with booze! An estimated 1,400 people, many dressed in bunny costumes, gathered yesterday for a good old-fashioned egg hunt, coupled with a pub crawl through Union Square. In addition to finding hidden eggs, participants were each given a raw egg and then asked to perform tasks, such as form a human pyramid in the park. The winning team took home a $500 cash prize.

Santorum won't quit race; GOP leader calls for unity

The U.S. Senate's top Republican called on his party to unite behind leading presidential candidate Mitt Romney yesterday as rival Rick Santorum vowed to stay in the race beyond a likely defeat in tomorrow's Wisconsin primary.

Senate Republican Leader Mitch McConnell stopped short of endorsing Romney in an interview on CNN's "State of the Union" show. But McConnell did say the former Massachusetts governor would make an "excellent nominee" and left little doubt about whom he supported in the battle to take on Democratic President Barack Obama in the Nov. 6 election.

"It's time to turn our attention to the fall campaign and make the case against the president of the United States."

"It's important to get behind the person who is obviously going to be our nominee"

SENATE REPUBLICAN LEADER MITCH MCCONNELL SAID, REFERRING TO ROMNEY.

"It's important to get behind the person who is obviously going to be our nominee," McConnell said, referring to Romney.

A victory in Wisconsin's primary tomorrow would give Romney an almost insurmountable lead in the Republicans' state-by-state nominating contest.

McConnell joined a chorus of other top Republicans who have called for the nominating process to wind down.

► Santorum said a defeat in Wisconsin would not force him from the race and predicted he would do well in May, when several conservative states hold their primaries.

Myanmar opposition claims major win for popular San Suu Kyi

Myanmar's pro-democracy leader Aung San Suu Kyi won a seat in parliament yesterday, her party said, after a historic by-election that is testing the country's nascent reform credentials and could persuade the West to end sanctions.

Suu Kyi's National League for Democracy party claimed victories in at least 19 of the 45 available seats and announced to loud cheers that the Nobel Peace Prize laureate had won in Kawhmu, southwest of the commercial capital Yangon, raising the prospect of a sizable political role following a two-decade struggle against military dictatorship.

The charismatic and wildly popular Suu Kyi did not address the crowd but issued a statement asking supporters to respect the other parties.

Mitt Romney has trust issues. The Republican presidential candidate, accused of having worn through more flip-flops than a spring break veteran, has earned a reputation of trustworthiness approximately commensurate with that owed to an Etch-a-Sketch. Over the course of his political career, but especially during the tendentious 2012 nominating process, the infamous "Massachusetts moderate" has become known for saying whatever needs saying, whenever it needs to be said, with the express goal of serving his political ambitions.

Cynical readers will note that this actually describes all politicians. Of course. But that doesn't mean we can't still hold Romney rhetorically accountable for his obvious dissembling. Take this past weekend for example, during which His Mittness addressed a Wisconsin crowd ahead of the state's primary tomorrow, touting his apparent immuni-ate president or the speaker of the House," Romney said, claiming that as governor he was able to stand above the typical divide between the two parties. "They would attack me because that's what Republicans and Democrats do to each other. At one point, one of the two of them — I won't mention which one — sent me a note. And he said, 'I've noticed that you don't respond to my attacks, I'm going to stop attacking you.' And there began a better relationship."

You see? Just like his porous positions on abortion rights and the individual mandate, Romney was for bipartisan harmony before he was against it. He would never attack his rivals, because that's what those other people do, and he's not one of them. Except, of course, when he is.

Like that same day, when he accused President Obama of failing America and of having radically different views from the rest of us. "Our president doesn't have the same feelings about American exceptionalism that we do," Romney said within hours of his high-minded refutation of ad hominem attacks. "This president has failed us. ... He broke a lot of promises."

Romney, on the other hand, is a man of his words. All of them, unfortunately.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

A large portion of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Morning shows heat up this week

Charlie Sheen: Oh, what a year

It's hard to believe, but it's been a full year since Charlie Sheen's very public meltdown and the words "tiger blood" were launched into the public lexicon. Now

Sheen is embarking on something of an apology tour. "I didn't recognize parts of who that guy was. I just wish it was somebody else's body. You say it's been a year — it's either been a day, or a hundred years," Sheen told Matt Lauer during an interview on the "Today" show last week. "I guess the plan was to reintroduce myself to America and to the media and say, 'Sorry about that, but here's what's happening now.'" Clearly, that didn't go as planned. Now Sheen is busying promoting a new TV show, FX's "Anger Management." "I couldn't have the 'Two and a Half Men' thing be my television legacy," Sheen says. "I couldn't have that end on that note."

► Couric

► Palin

► Oprah

The "Today" show is responding to the missile that ABC hurled last week — the announcement that anchorwoman Katie Couric is guest-hosting "Good Morning America" — with a nuclear warhead of its own:

The NBC morning show announced over the weekend that Tuesday's guest-host will be none other than Sarah Palin (yes, that Sarah Palin. We thought it was an April Fools joke, too).

To make things even more interesting, Oprah is stopping by "CBS Morning News" today to see her BFF, host Gayle King. According to a CBS press release, Oprah's coming to "discuss everything from the latest developments at OWN, her Leadership Academy and life after her daytime talk show."

Katie Couric, Sarah Palin, Oprah: It's as though this week's morning news ratings war was created just to give the rival networks' late-night talk-show hosts something to joke about.

Talking points

Lohan celebrates freedom via partying

Despite advice from a judge that she should probably stop partying, Lindsay Lohan celebrated the end of her formal probation by throwing a little get-together at the Chateau Marmont, according to Radar Online. "Lindsay's guests ate paella and watched Elizabeth Taylor's 'Who's Afraid Of Virginia Woolf?'" Lindsay was in an extremely good mood and grateful to be off of formal probation," a source says. "The party went until around 2 a.m. Alcohol was being served in moderation, but Lindsay wasn't seen drinking. It's just rather strange that Lindsay chose to have the party at the hotel, especially after what the judge said to her in court."

Lohan

Brand is philosophical

Don't worry about Russell Brand — he's doing just fine. "I'm doing well," Brand, who filed for divorce from Katy Perry late last year, tells People magazine. And apparently "well" means he's in a philosophical mood. "You don't need to brush it off if you don't get it on you in the first place," he says. "I don't have to let anything go. I don't hold on to anything negative. It's the same as zero-ness." He's also not holding onto his recent arrest in New Orleans, which is "meaningless to me," he says. "It's like it never happened. It's meaningless."

Winslet wants to barf

While many still consider Celine Dion's "Titanic" tune, "My Heart Will Go On," a classic, Kate Winslet is literally sick of it. "I feel like throwing up when I hear it. No, I shouldn't say that. No, actually, I do feel like throwing up," Winslet tells MTV News. "I wish I could say, 'Oh listen, everybody! It's the Celine Dion song!' But I don't. I just have to sit there, you know, kind of straight-faced with a massive, internal eye-roll."

Gaga's tame birthday night

Lady Gaga had a not-so-wild celebration for her 26th birthday, treating her friends to some time at the gym before grabbing dinner with her parents, according to Us Weekly. "Her friends filled the studio, and they had a blast," a source says of Gaga's visit to SoulCycle, an L.A. spin class studio. "She requested [Bruce Springsteen's] 'Thunder Road' because it's one of her favorite songs. And as for the location of the celebratory dinner: home. "It was just a small thing with her family," says the source. "Her mother cooked."

A very Technicolor weekend

1. Paula Abdul attended the Charitable Foundation Federation gala auction on Saturday in Moscow, Russia.

2. Selena Gomez and Katy Perry were seatmates at Nickelodeon's 25th Annual Kids' Choice Awards held at Galen Center on Saturday in Los Angeles.

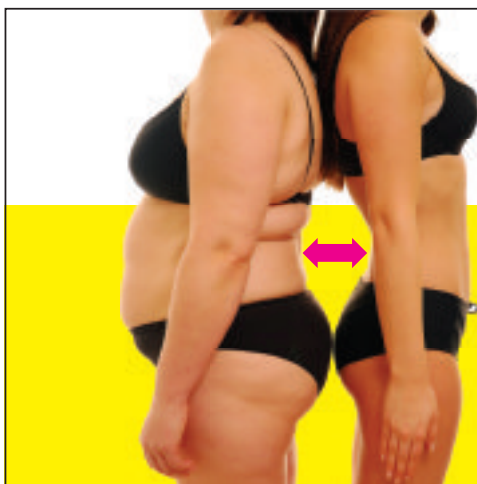

3. Nicki Minaj performed onstage at FOX's "American Idol" Season 11 Top 9 To 8 Live Elimination Show on Thursday in Hollywood.

4. Justin Bieber and host Will Smith were doused in green slime at Nickelodeon's Kids' Choice Awards on Saturday.

5. Stacy "Fergie" Ferguson arrived to celebrate her 37th birthday at 1 OAK Las Vegas at the Mirage Hotel & Casino on Friday in Las Vegas. According to People, she spent the night table-hopping from the one she shared with husband Josh Duhamel and Ne-Yo to one where Michael Jordan was sitting.

6. Vanessa Lachey showed off her baby bump (and husband Nick Lachey) on the red carpet during the opening of Marquee Nightclub at The Star on Friday in Sydney.

Adding to SBTRKT

► Mysterious UK electro producer discusses ignoring boundaries, collaborating with Drake and the evolution of a song in the live setting

Although some might suggest that SBTRKT bridges the boundaries between DJ-produced electro and traditional rock, he says he doesn't let anything like genre stand in the way of composition.

"In terms of writing music, I don't think about boundaries," says Aaron Jerome, the U.K.-based producer who becomes SBTRKT when he puts on an African-themed mask and gets in front of a console. "I think there are so many facets of music out there — I'm just going to keep trying different ideas."

Best known for the smooth electropop single "Wildfire," Jerome spent March cruising music festivals — from the all-encompassing SXSW conference in Texas to electronic-focused Ultra Music Festival in Miami.

SBTRKT refers to the idea that Jerome is "subtracting" his personal identity from the music. Unlike other electro acts, who perform hunched over buttons, SBTRKT focuses on live performance using live drums and collaborating with singer Sampha.

"I try to use the best instruments possible for each environment," says Jerome.

And after the recording is completed, he says the songs continue to evolve in a live setting.

"Every week, I'm adding new sounds, new synths," he says. "[The songs] are constantly developing and writing themselves."

In touring through the U.K., Australia and now the U.S., the one thing that Jerome has noticed about SBTRKT crowds is the reaction.

"It's always kind of crazy that the songs you create have meaning in the world," he says.

► SBTRKT plays sold-out shows tonight at Music Hall of Williamsburg and tomorrow night at Webster Hall.

Drizzy gets busy

Jerome's unique approach has caught the ears of high-profile acts — including Drake, who remixed "Wildfire."

"After that, I tweeted at him and he said he was going to come down to the show. ... I didn't think that it would happen," says Jerome about Drake's guest appearance at his show in Toronto last summer.

The artist says he has recently been speaking with OutKast and Odd Future about potential collaborations.

Fresh Snow

► Lily Collins is the new Snow White in 'Mirror Mirror' ► 'I never thought that I'd be sword-fighting and fencing and learning all these cool stunts'

Lily Collins faces quite the tall order with director Tarsem Singh's "Mirror Mirror" — namely, putting a nonanimated face and an updated spin on perhaps the most classic of fairy tales, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarves." But it's a challenge she's been happy to tackle. Even with a competing Snow White film grabbing for headlines, Collins (aka singer Phil's daughter) is working hard to keep her focus where she wants it.

Did you ever think, in playing a fairy tale princess, that you'd get to do an action movie training montage?

No! I mean, it was written in the script that she meets the dwarves and there would be sword-fighting, but the script changed so much during filming that this montage, when it was added, I thought, "This is going to be so much fun to shoot." It took a long time to shoot, but when it's all cut together with the music, it's just so fun. And I never thought that I'd be sword-fighting and fencing and learning all these cool stunts.

It is an interesting update. Fairy tales traditionally aren't great for the females — lots of sitting around and pining, waiting to be rescued.

And that's what we did not want. We didn't want to take the animation and just make it live-action. We wanted to take it and have a reason to redo it. In today's day and age, girls are very empowered to do the same things that guys do. And young girls want to see movies that show people that they admire are not needing the prince as much as they used to. How was it playing opposite Armie Hammer with these new takes on Snow White and Prince Charming?

It was fun because we both agreed from the get-go it's a very Katharine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy back-and-forth — not just the physicality of the sword-fighting but the physicality of the language, because it is so back and forth, and we're both trying to one-up each other in conversations. It was very playful.

There's that other Snow White movie coming out in June. How much were you aware of the competing project?

I think it was known before we even started that there were these two projects. Aesthetically and with the storyline, they're so different. I think more of the struggle was just this whole, like, who's coming out first kind of a thing and making sure there's enough time in between so that everyone's not overloaded with the fairy tale. But that never really trickled down to us on set.

3 Ways to spring into happiness

Zen in the City

GABRIELLE BERNSTEIN

WWW.GABBYB.TV

Springtime ignites a whole new attitude in city-dwellers. The heavy layers come off, the Frisbees start flying and a state of newfound happiness sets in. This spring season, amp up your good vibes with my tips for happiness.

Spring clean your mind: Spring offers us an awesome opportunity for cleaning house. Rather than put so much emphasis on spring-cleaning your closet, though, why don't you clear out some of the clutter in your mind? There's likely a thought (or several) that has been holding you back and keeping you stuck. Get honest with yourself about the negative thoughts that are limiting you and commit to a mental spring cleaning. The simplest way to begin is to start each day with a more positive intention. Each morning, affirm your desire for the day by saying: "Today I choose to perceive my life with positivity. I am willing to release the negative thoughts that have been holding me back from happiness." This simple mantra will jump-start your day with powerful energy and a commitment to happiness. Making the conscious decision to choose happiness will begin your mental clearing process.

Take a sun break: If you work at a desk or spend too much time indoors, make a point to step outside to soak up the sunshine. The sun has so many healing elements. When you're exposed to direct sunlight you produce endorphins, which bring about a burst of positive energy. Take a sun break once a day and let happiness shine upon you!

Plan a picnic: City-dwellers spend too much time eating takeout or obsessing over the latest hot restaurant. This spring, take advantage of the park and share an awesome picnic. You'll find joy in preparing a meal for a friend and saving some cash while you're at it. Bring your new attitude to the park, soak up the rays and enjoy your picnic!

► The Christian Dior runway may be a long way off, but undergrads can start planning now.

How to break into the fashion industry

► It's an intimidating field, no doubt ► But everyone has to start somewhere — and there's room for everyone, according to one expert

Missouri State professor Michele Granger wrote the book on breaking into the fashion industry — three times over: "Fashion Entrepreneurship: Retail Business Planning" and "The Fashion Intern" are both in their second editions. Plus, "Fashion: The Industry and Its Careers" is a must-read for anyone curious about a career in the field.

What's a good first step for breaking into the fashion industry?

Retail work — especially for kids that are still in high school. You get exposed to the products, management and sales. For college students, it's

► Michele Granger

"[Fashion] runs the gamut. ... If you figure out your skill set, you'll likely find a direction within the industry." GRANGER a step they can take before they move in at a higher level after graduation.

What degrees should undergrads consider?

There are really two primary avenues. One is a degree in fashion design or fashion product development; the other is fashion merchandising. Design skews toward the artistic, creative people. Merchandising is more of the business end.

The fashion industry seems to embody myriad industries — from finance to creative design.

Fashion is a lifestyle. It runs the gamut: what you put in your house, your stationary, what you put on your body. Add to that an incredible amount of news and journalism about the industry — publications and websites. If you figure out your skill set, you'll likely find a direction within the industry.

Is there room for altruism in a fashion industry career?

There are more and more non-profits and others within the industry doing wonderful work: Housing Works and TOMS are just two. A lot of students say, "I don't want to be part of an industry that's frivolous and wasteful." We make sure to cover moral and ethical issues in our coursework at Missouri State, and any good program should do that.

Escaping the daily grind

► New job forum Escape the City matches burnt-out professionals with exotic, change-of-pace jobs
► Interested in running a post office in Antarctica? ► Look no further

Former Goldman Sachs executive director Greg Smith isn't the only restless professional fidgeting with his too-tight tie.

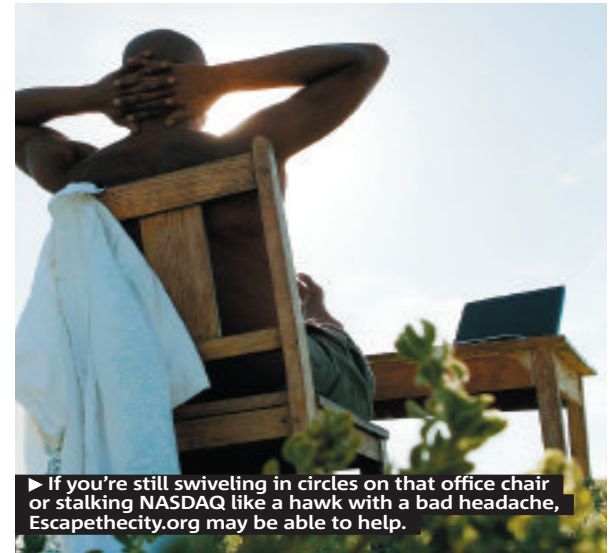

After Smith's recent resignation, countless cubicle-captives have been flocking to Escape the City, an organization whose mission statement dares workers to "Stop Dreaming and Start Planning. Don't Wait for Permission. Do Something Different."

In fact, in the week following Smith's resignation, Escape the City's website registered a four-fold increase in hits and overall membership.

Founded by two ex-management consultants from London's corporate nucleus, Escape the City "showcases exciting opportunities for a community of talented corporate professionals and employers looking to change up the game," says team member Mikey Howe.

Having recently expanded from London's financial district to New York City's, the organization has discovered antsy sentiments stemming beyond Wall Street.

"We originally targeted people in standard corporate positions like finance, law and accounting, but we've actually tapped into something that is relatively universal," says Howe. "Our demographic is mostly 20- and 30-year-olds, but I get e-mails every day from people who have been working for 30-plus years in a wide range of industries they're now leaving."

Not only does the site offer job postings from Cambodian resort management to sustainability work in Sierra Leone, it's also a neighborhood-friendly forum. "We are very member-focused. Any of our members can reach out to communities of escapees, learning from those who came from similar backgrounds or entered their particular field of interest," says Howe. "It's a great mix of people both offering and looking for help."

Lottery mania could yield better results

Can we all agree that giving $640 million to potentially one person, or even a few people, is obscene and completely stupid? What are they going to spend it on — 10,000 yachts, 900 mansions? It's too much. They'd have been better to announce, "We are going to pick 5,000 winners to split it." Why don't we create a more intelligent lottery where more people automatically win each week, but win $100,000 a year for the rest of their lives? I bet most Americans, if it were put to a vote, would choose this method, because their odds of winning would be infinitely better. Also, if 1,000 people every single week won $100,000 per year, this would help our economy more and reduce unemployment too! It also means they wouldn't go insane like the winners who receive too much. And it means they wouldn't be mugged, like a person who wins millions is too often!

LIAM KIRCHBERGER, BROOKLYN

More than half a billion dollars? Wow, that's insane! At work, everyone talked about what they would do with some of the money. I couldn't really think of anything but the basics!

VINCENT C-FLEMING, NEW YORK

Prayer as health care? Good luck

A recent survey found that 25 percent of Americans believe prayer is an effective form of health care. These 25 percent should not be forced to buy health care insurance. But don't you dare show up at the emergency room! Just duct tape the Bible to your gunshot wound and use your rosary beads to form a tourniquet.

ROBERT LA ROSA, WHITESTONE

"No person can be loyal to the Constitution and uphold the charter of the U.N."

No person can be loyal to the Constitution and uphold the charter of the U.N. They are as opposite as light and dark, good and evil, freedom and slavery. No man can serve two masters. Support of the U.N. by government officials and employees is a violation of their oath. Wittingly or unwittingly, it is treason.

Obama sold voters out to Russia

RE: "PRESIDENT OBAMA ON TRIAL FOR THE TRUTH": Mr. Beschler, to your critique of my letter: "People like Minkin" (thank you for being polite) will "read malevolence" into what Obama whispered to Medvedev over the hot mic since we find it very disappointing that our President would attempt, for re-election sake alone, to hide his true intentions from the American people and yet to share those with the government of a foreign country, especially such a strong rival of ours. What you call his "pretty ambiguous statement" is in fact crystal clear — to make concessions to Russia and to scale down our missile defense of Europe, which also telegraphs his weakness, both as a leader and as a diplomat, to our allies and enemies alike. Frankly, his chances for re-election have just suffered a huge blow. And I'm not a Republican, if that's what you thought.

GAROLD MINKIN, NEW YORK

Horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. If this weekend didn't offer you much recreational relief, don't push yourself too heavily. Balance your mental processes in order to move forward.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. You won't be compelled to take some time to help assuage the needs of others, but you'll feel good about yourself if you do. Devote as much time as you feel you can to the process.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. You'll come up with a rather ingenious concept — and because you're a natural-born salesperson, you shouldn't have any problem selling it to the powers that be.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. This is one of those days when you could be inclined to be a bit loose with your resources and easily spend them on something you enjoy rather than on what you need. Be careful.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Sometimes getting others to do something that you're eminently qualified to do for yourself can be stupid. Delegating some of your work might be deleterious rather than helpful.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. This is one of those days when you will be far more effective playing a supportive role rather than a starring one. Position yourself where you'll be able to do the most good.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Because your affairs have a better chance of working out than you anticipate, don't let yourself get discouraged over something petty. Stay positive and optimistic throughout the day.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. By staying positive, others will admire the way you handle things and their approval will enhance your image even further. Having a good attitude makes for success.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Because you'll have implicit faith in whatever your position happens to be today, you'll be easily aroused to a righteous defense. You're in the right, and you should have no problems making your points.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Don't hesitate to trade on the business acumen of a trusted associate. A joint endeavor in which you're involved will be far more promising with her or him on board.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. If you sense that making a concession or a compromise can be to your ultimate benefit, you'd be right. This is one of those times when giving can be the key to getting.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Your chances for achieving success will be increased if you make sure your goal is clearly defined. It might be better to have only one major target at a time. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

THIRD WATCH

► No longer the rising star, Robinson Cano is the best all-around hitter on the Yankees
► Joe Girardi has slotted him in the No. 3 spot ► Can he carry team back to the playoffs?

Being the second-best hitter on a Yankees squad is nothing to sneeze at. After all, Lou Gehrig was the second-best hitter in the 1927 lineup.

Then again, when you become the best hitter on the team, that is worthy of a celebration.

It may go without saying that second baseman Robinson Cano is the best hitter on the 2012 Yankees. He was probably the best hitter on the 2010 and 2011 team too. So why didn't anyone notice?

Cano finished sixth in MVP voting last season and third the year before. Third will also be the new position Cano will take in the batting order — traditionally reserved for the best pure hitter on a team. Alex Rodriguez held that position for a long time.

"I'm proud of it, proud to bat third because it shows I've continued to work hard," Cano told The New York Times this week. "But I'll hit wherever they want me. It doesn't matter, because wherever you hit in this lineup, you have to produce."

Cano has never hogged the spotlight on a team that has super-priced free agents Mark Teixeira and Rodriguez and homegrown heroes like Derek Jeter.

But he's surpassed those players at the plate and all for a measly $10 million last season. He will likely be a free agent after next season (the team owns a club option for 2013), but that's an issue for down the road.

As the Yankees shift into the future, Cano will be the centerpiece. Jeter and Rodriguez will be gone. Those veterans are already being relegated to stints at designated hitter to keep them fresh. Meanwhile, Cano has missed 11 games in the last five years. Combined.

Now he is trying to bounce back from a down year in 2011. He only hit .302 with 28 home runs. When you hit .342 in your second season in the majors, that's a down year.

Rivera on a good-bye tour?

When you are the greatest player ever at your position, you deserve one last lap around the league to receive your standing ovations.

Yankees closer Mariano Rivera, on the other hand, would prefer to keep that victory lap a secret.

No one besides Rivera, not

► Rivera

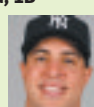

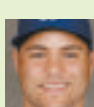

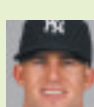

even manager Joe Girardi or general manager Brian Cashman, know if he will retire after the 2012 season. But his comments at the opening of spring training have led many of believe it is his last.

"It is hard when you have the ability to continue and you have to make that decision [whether to retire]," Rivera said as camp opened. "It is hard. For me, baseball is not everything."

Whether it's his last season or not, he'll still deserve standing ovations. ● METRO

Projected lineup

- 1 Derek Jeter, SS — Had a nice bounce-back season last year.
- 2 Curtis Granderson, CF — Were those 41 HR an aberration or the norm now?
- 3 Robinson Cano, 2B — Best hitter on the team and it isn't even close.
- 4 Alex Rodriguez, 3B — He'll see time at DH also, but they need some offense.
- 5 Mark Teixeira, 1B — Power numbers were good, but .248 AVG won't cut it.
- 6 Nick Swisher, RF — Could be final year in the Bronx. Contract year?
- 7 Raul Ibanez, DH — Has struggled in spring, lets see what he has left.
- 8 Russell Martin, C — His average has dropped the last five seasons.
- 9 Brett Gardner, LF — His .259 AVG in 2011 won't cut it.

Projected lineup

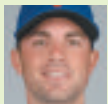

1 Andres Torres, CF —
Unproven is putting it lightly. He's played one full season (2010) and had a .343 OBP. They'd take that.

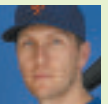

2 Daniel Murphy, 2B —
The real question will always be defense. As a hitter, he should be solid in the No. 2 spot.

3 David Wright, 3B —
They need more power out of Wright this year. Hopefully the new wall helps.

4 Jason Bay, LF — We could write "see above." Oh, and please stay healthy for once.

5 Ike Davis, 1B — If he plays like he did before being injured, watch out.

6 Lucas Duda, RF — His .370 OBP is the highest of any returning player.

7 Josh Thole, C — The .268 AVG and .345 OBP of last year would delight the Mets.

8 Ruben Tejada, SS — No, he's not exactly going to replace Jose Reyes. But he's just 22 and played well last year.

- General manager Sandy Alderson says 'the sky is not falling' Mets fans
- Lineup looks solid as long as everyone is healthy (knock on wood)
- So will their ace show up or will it be another sad season in Queens?

NICK LAHAM/GETTY IMAGES

Rarely does a team have the luxury of their biggest question mark being a two-time Cy Young winner.

But that's where the Mets stand heading into 2012 season.

Johan Santana is in the second-to-last season of a six-year, $137.5 million contract. Slightly over 21 million of that came last season, when he didn't throw a single pitch.

And yet, on a team where nothing seems to go right, the best news of spring training has consistently been about Santana's progress from major shoulder surgery. In his 18 1/3 innings pitched he's allowed 17 hits and struck out 13, while pitching to a 3.44 ERA. While spring training statistics don't necessarily mean much, being healthy enough to throw every five days does.

Manager Terry Collins announced this past weekend that Santana will take the ball on Opening Day. It's been a long road back.

"It means everything that we have done since I had my surgery, all the way to today, has been paid off," Santana told reporters after being named the Game 1 starter. "We worked hard. And I'm very happy. I'm very happy that I have an opportunity to start the season from day one with the team. That's something that I really was looking forward to. I'm excited about it."

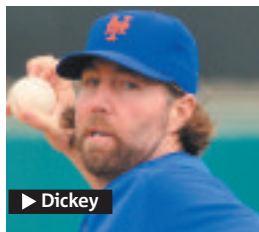

The Mets hope Santana will still be with the team at Game 162 as well. With just one year left on his contract after this season, he could be a prime trade piece on the market this July — if he is still healthy and depending on how competitive the Mets are this season.

It's no secret those two things will go hand-in-hand as well.

MARK OSBORNE
mark.osborne@metro.us

The rotation

► Dickey

The Mets' lineup isn't bad when healthy, it's their pitching that holds a lot of the questions.

1 Johan Santana, LHP
If healthy, you can pencil him in for about 175 innings and a sub-3.50 ERA.

2 R.A. Dickey, RHP
When not climbing mountains, the knuckleballer has been the team's best pitcher the last two years.

3 Jon Niese, LHP
The 25-year-old could be entering a make or break third full season.

4 Dillon Gee, RHP
If he cuts down his walks (71 in '11) he's a solid No. 4.

5 Mike Pelfrey, RHP
Stop licking your hand and live up to expectations.

Wright, Bay happy to see new walls

If you rebuild it, the home runs will come.

That is the hope for the Mets anyway. After three seasons of woeful home run totals at Citi Field, the Mets organization finally decided to change the dimensions of their cavernous home park.

A shorter left field wall, previously at 16 feet, was built to make the distance shorter and the height was cut in half. The "Mo Zone" in right field was removed altogether, which the cutout area being changed into a straight angle. This brought in the wall from 415 feet to 390 feet.

"It's nice to look out there and you see the adjustments and you know in the back of your mind that hopefully if you hit a ball well, it's going to go out," Wright told reporters after arriving at spring training, where the dimensions in Port St. Lucie were adjusted to mirror Citi Field.

The Mets hope both Wright and Jason Bay will benefit from the smaller dimensions.

Wright has hit just 22 home runs in his three years at Citi Field, while his final three years at Shea Stadium he hit 50 homers, including 21 in 2008 alone.

Bay's power numbers haven't just decreased, they've disappeared. After hitting 36 homers in 2009 with Boston, he's hit 18 in two years with New York.

The editors' regular season roundtable

Mike Greger
Metro Philadelphia

NL East: Phillies
NL Central: Reds
NL West: Giants

Which team will lead the majors in wins during the regular season?

Detroit. They already had perennial Cy Young candidate Justin Verlander. Now the Tigers throw Prince Fielder's 40 home runs into the mix. We're betting on 100 wins and a cigarette endorsement deal for Jim Leyland.

Which hitter will have the best regular season?

Joey Votto. The 28-year-old sometimes gets lost in the shuffle, but with Prince Fielder and Albert Pujols changing leagues, it's his time.

Which pitcher will have the best regular season?

Roy Halladay. Silence all the Stephen Strasburg talk right now. Doc spent his offseason wrestling snakes and polishing his two Cy Young awards. Mark the Phillies' ace down for 22 wins and 240 innings. Another hum season.

Which team will be a surprise — good or bad — this year?

Pittsburgh. They haven't had a winning season since 1992 and are throwing out Erik Bedard on Opening Day. Still, in a weak division, we like the Bucs to do some damage. Andrew McCutchen is a five-tool talent.

AL East: Rays
AL Central: Tigers
AL West: Angels

Angels. Sure, everyone knows they added Albert Pujols, but look at their pitching staff. Jered Weaver, C.J. Wilson, Dan Haren and Ervin Santana could be the best top 4 in the entire majors. Oh, also, they signed Albert Pujols.

Jose Bautista. Forget all the nonsensical steroids talk. This guy should have won the AL MVP last year. He batted .302 with a .447 OBP and clubbed 42 home runs to give him the best OPS in the majors as well. He's real people.

Clayton Kershaw. It was Kershaw, not Halladay or Verlander, who had the best ERA in the majors last year. He had 248 strikeouts in 233 1/3 IP.

Atlanta. This is going to be an ugly surprise. The Braves have Matt Diaz and Tyler Pastornicky in their lineup and they just signed Livan Hernandez as a possible starter. I can't believe people think this team is an actual playoff contender.

Yankees and Rangers
NL wild cards:
Marlins and Diamondbacks

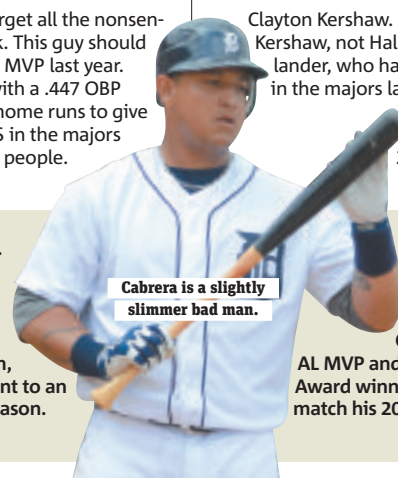

San Francisco. The offense was dreadful last season, but the return of Buster Posey in the middle of the lineup should help reverse San Fran's fortunes.

Miguel Cabrera. Reported to camp in the "best shape of his life." That's not saying much, but all signs point to an otherworldly season.

Cabrera is a slightly slimmer bad man.

Justin Verlander. Still the gold standard. Could the 2011 AL MVP and Cy Young Award winner possibly match his 2011 output?

Tampa Bay. Every year, people count out the Rays and it's always hard to understand why. With lefty Matt Moore, the most experienced rookie in the majors, Tampa Bay could easily win the AL East outright in 2012. Here's saying they will.

MLB impact players in '12

► Who will define the 2012 MLB season? ► Some familiar, some not-so-familiar names that will take the summer by storm ► Pujols shifts power back to AL

There does not appear to be a runaway, surefire, can't-miss World Series contender in either the American or National Leagues this year.

To figure out which teams will play late into October,

Metro looks at a variety of impact players from both leagues that will make-or-break Fall Classic chances.

JEFF GOLDBERG
sports@metro.us

Troy Tulowitzki

SHORTSTOP, ROCKIES

If the NL is looking for an untainted star, it could perhaps find him in Colorado, where the All-Star shortstop is already being touted as an MVP candidate. The Rockies should be contenders in the West, and Tulo might finally be on the precipice of a monster season.

30

Tulowitzki blasted 30 homers in 2011 along with a career-high 105 RBI and a .916 OPS.

Yu Darvish

PITCHER, RANGERS

Not since Dice-K has a pitcher from Japan created so much buzz. If he can have the same kind of impact that Matsuzaka had in his first season, the Rangers could well make it three World Series appearances in a row.

Albert Pujols

FIRST BASEMAN, ANGELS

The Angels might be the most stacked team on both sides of the ball in the American League, and the acquisition of Pujols is the linchpin. But, still, the lineup behind Pujols in Los Angeles is hardly Murderer's Row, and Pujols could easily get the Bonds treatment in his new league. How he adjusts could determine the American League pennant.

Matt Kemp

CENTER FIELD, DODGERS

Do you believe in Magic? Maybe things are finally looking up for the Dodgers, who have been looking up in the National League West standings for the past few years.

But they still have Kemp, who might be the best player in baseball no one knows about. Maybe some baseball Showtime in Los Angeles will finally make Kemp a star.

Kemp batted .324 at the dish last year while driving in a career-high 126 runs with 39 homers.

He finished second to Ryan Braun in the NL MVP voting.

PUBLISHERS NOTE
All real estate advertising herein is subject to the Federal Fair Housing Act of 1968 and state and local fair housing laws. The Fair Housing Act makes it illegal to advertise any preference, limitations or discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, or national origin or an intention to make any such preference, limitation or discrimination. State or local laws may make unlawful advertising that discriminates on the basis of age, marital status, or sexual orientation. Metro US will not knowingly accept any advertising for real estate which violates the law. The law requires that all dwellings advertised are available on an equal opportunity basis. If you have any questions regarding housing discrimination, call the Long Island Housing Services at (800) 660-6920 in Long Island or the Anti-Discrimination Center at (212) 346-7600 in New York City. To file a complaint call HUD toll-free at (800) 669-9777 or the New York City Commission on Human Rights at (212) 306-7500
